

Healthy Fields Sustain a Healthy Future

Saturday, Jan. 26th 10:15am

About the Session:

In this session tap into the expertise of a passionate soil health advocate with 30 years of experience. Learn how integrating livestock with cover crops will improve your soil health and ultimately your production levels. Understand the underlying soil health principles that drive crop, pasture, and rangeland soil health and hear updates on locals implementing innovative practices that will sustain healthy fields now and into the future.

About the Speaker:

Dave Dearstyne is a soil scientist and technical advisor with over 30 years experience. He served many of those years as the project leader of the NRCS in Montrose. With a passion for soil health, he helped found the Western Slope Soil Health Conference and has been a frequent presenter during the 9 years this gathering has catalyzed innovative soil health practices in Colorado. He has served as the Shavano Soil Health Technical Advisor and as the program lead for the Natural Resources Inventory for the state of Colorado. He encourages the community to use good soil health practices through the Montrose Regional Library's home gardening series.
